Program on Conflict Management Skills for Creating Productive Workplaces

COD campus
Hyderabad

Nov 11-13, 2024

Program Director
Prof. Lalitha Akundi

Focus

While conflict is natural to the workplace and a predictable part of working with others, the unproductive conflict has a high cost and unresolved conflict negatively affects the morale, motivation, communication, attitudes and productivity. It can damage relationships, reduce productivity, and inhibit creative problem solving and innovation. Managed effectively, conflict can lead to positive, cooperative situations. Conflict Management as a competency involves having the ability to help others through emotional or tense situations, tactfully bring disagreements into the open, and define solutions that everyone can endorse. Leaders who take time to understand different perspectives work toward finding a common ground on which everyone can agree. They acknowledge the views of all sides while redirecting the energy toward a shared ideal or an agreeable resolution. Managers with their conflict management competency have the unique opportunity to step in and facilitate conflict management so that the teams can get back on track in achieving the shared objectives.

Objective

To equip the mid-level executives with necessary conflict management competencies so that they can facilitate functional conflicts and respond effectively to various other workplace conflicts and thereby make their workplaces conflict competent.

Contents

- Dynamics of Conflict: Good Bad and the Ugly
- Emotional Intelligence & Conflict Management
- Styles of Conflict Management
- Communication for Conflict Management
- Negotiation Strategies for Conflict Management
- Managing Stress in Conflict Management
- Moving from Conflict to Collaboration

Who can Participate?

This programme is designed for middle and level executives of public sector, private sector and government organizations who have moved into managerial roles.

The best way to resolve any conflict is through open and honest communication.

- JOHN F KENNEDY

Methodology

The program is curated to develop conflict competencies through a blend of theoretical inputs, group discussions, virtual training games, activities and the use of psychometric instruments.
